Awesome

On my bed where I laid, fell into the deep darkness. your a dirty girl

And when I was awakened, I saw something bright.

Where have I fallen, landed in front of a goddess.

I hate it when this happens to me

Smile, shining and as brilliant as light.

AWW
wow cute

You took my hand and lead me to a meadow.

Dancing in grass looking in your eyes same as the sky.

Under a big cherry blossom tree we find our pillow.

Pink cheeks, and hair as dark as night.

you have a talent.
very nice poem!

As the skies turn a murderous black.

The light in your eyes, in your soul fades.

Your expression begins to lack.

Good job

Memories begin to haze, can't remember the days.

Bolt upright hearing sky's roar.

hahaha

Panicked I look over only to see you snore.

MOMMY by: Najiah Hawara

Mom

Your are the meaning of love
Yet the meaning of life
You're the light of my world
A flood from the light of god
The wish of my heart

Mom

You are my cherished treasure
You are the one for me, in this universe

Mom

My angel
My love that will remain forever
You are still my cradle
You are my rose with whole sent

Mom

You are the beat of my heart
Always there for me
Like a second lung
You are the air, and I must breathe air

Mom

You are a fountainhead of forgiveness
And compassion
I learned from you, do you not see?
For you turned me a poet

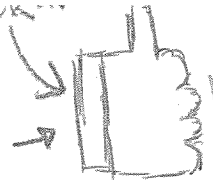

Mom

Your heart is the sea
The most cherished creation ☺

really good job

Special person.

Wow. Great detail!!

tears fall from the girls ever her life's become a web of lies.

Discouraged, upset, at night she wept snuck out of the house, while everyone slept walking down the cold dark streets.

How long will it be before we meet?

His smile, her silent eyes

The way the moon could light up the sky.

but him and time are in a race.

The clock is ticking, their future's erased.

Please oh please just let him stay?

She can't believe they made it this way.

How could you leave her by herself?

She was there when there was no one else.

You made it so she'd never frown.

She helped you when the world kicked down and to her they tried to do the same.

but in her arms you still remained.

I hate you, you stupid boy.

You let all that smoke cover your eyes.

You made me think caring was actually a crime.

You needed a lighter to have a good time.

I tried my hardest to say my good-byes.

but I just can't reach you, you're floating too high.

she'd relive those nights one million times stand before him & let him wipe tears from her eyes.

comfort him as they lay, sadness so deep.

and their sins were quiet, so they could fall asleep.

Strawberry

So small it fits in your palm

The perfect strawberry red as a rose

Sink your teeth into the sweetness

Close your eyes and savor the delightful taste

Like it is your last

Don't worry

Have one

Or maybe two

It's all good

There is plenty more

The perfect valentine

Shape as a heart

Dip it into chocolate

And make it a treat

Strawberries are the best fruit there is

It's one of a kind

Reminds you of spring

Now that's a fruit

Epicness

Better to be outside than school

I do not know how to write a sonnet
I would rather run a mile - ^{even} exercise.
And hope fully find a bonnet
Then put it in the lost and found pile
But since this is school
And it is for a grade
I don't want to look like a fool
And if I do I'll buy a blade then trade it with my friend so I can get a working car then take it to Mexico so I can blend
And go play golf to get par
And to bring this to an end
I did not copy this from a friend

Uhm...

Quietly, she arrived into the room,
She sat in the first open chair,
Class will start soon,
I admired her long golden hair.

Frightened and lonely was her look,
I longed to say hello.
I froze and hid behind my book,
She will never know this fellow.

"No, I thought , "She needs a friend now!"
I gathered my strength so brave,
I gave her a smile and wow! She gave me a wave!

Classover, the bell was ringing.
I looked at her, my heart was singing!

A Sonnet

A: I don't know why I love you, and quite honestly, I don't really care
B: There is but one thing that you know, I know deep down in my heart
A: I know only, you're perfection; for how can I describe you, shan't I dare
B: Your personality so perfect ; so pleasant, so charming, so smart
C: My passion for you shines much brighter than any shooting star
D: As I gaze upon your face, I am led into your deep, blue eyes; I drown
C: I think of how you're be so close to me, and yet away so far
D : That is, until I am greeted by your lovely smile; how can I frown
E: I'd give up the world, if only we could be more than just friends
F: You've always been there for me through my toughest times
E: I remember what you did to me, yet still my love transcends
F: And you know I will always be there for you, forever; anytime
G: I have meant to say this many times, yet I could never confess G: That when I'm with you, and you, with me, life is at it's the best

A sonnet that happens to be about penguins and seals
Penguins are black
But also white
Black is the color they do not lack
But to see them is a sight
They reside in the south pole
As do the seals
So do people that dig a hole
They're on their knees, not heels
Sliding down a slope
Searching for some fun
No they don't need soap
At least not til they're done
Sliding off the slope they see a seal
Into the seal's mouth they go is the deal

Shock

The hot, Hawaiian sun shining on my face

As I lay on my beach towel

My legs buried in the sand

The rhythm of the ocean's waves flowing over the beach

Water crashing on water

I listen to families laugh as they play in the ocean

The sand is fine and is as soft as velvet

The sand acts as my mattress as I doze off to sleep

My surroundings slow down as my mind turns off

Noises sound far off in the distance

The worries of life fade as I fall into a blissful slumber...

Shock is the first thing that happens in my mind

Cold water swirls around my body

I attempt to jump to my feet

Resulting in failure since my legs are buried in sand

The water starts to recede back to its home

I sit up and furiously rip my legs from the layers of sand

As I stand, I see nearby families laughing at my encounter with the ocean

I feel my face flush as embarrassment swoops upon me

I grab my dripping beach towel and trudge back to my family

This is the time that I learned a good lesson that I wish to share with you all

If you seek to keep your dignity at the beach

Then don't fall asleep near the water

Mom

Ever since I was little Until the day I grow tall
My mom has been there
And I am thankful for all

I used to act
Like I needed to get decked
But no matter what I did
She still had hope

She knew that deep
In my heart
I was a great kid

And it is that hope
That has made me
Who she and I Want me to be

I know it's not "cool"
To love your mom
But when she enters
The sacred golden gates

I won't be one of the shameful few
Who never told their mom,
"I Love You"

I love you too! Jasmine
Macias

We will never be apart

The look on his face made me cheer with glee
His smile took up all the space
It made me never want to flee

He was always near
He truly loved me so
He was always here
As the gentle winds blow

He never would frown never really sad
And never let me down
He was always glad

Close in your heart
we never would part

Wow... I think

On the road we do not go

On the dirt we put on a show

Around the clay oval we sure do glow

My car and I, we are as bright as snow

With ~~for~~ four to go

From the stands you would not know

I was deciding to give it a go

I took the turn wide

~~heading into~~ and side by side

I slowly pass by

Like a sly fox on the 4th of July

Little did I know he was still right behind

Going into the same corner he gave me a try

He was far too shy

And not at all sly

He had made a few mistakes

But that's all it ~~takes~~ ~~takes~~ ~~takes~~ for me to begin to try

Lightning

by Mahaila Woods

Lightning booms as I hear my older sister scream,

She doesn't like storms, as I can tell.

As she jumps up and bolts in to my bed,
I think "Isn't I who should have the fear?"

Convincing her the storm is nothing is hard,
The dogs yelping helps none.

As I hear all this and see the bright flashes,
I think again "Isn't I who should have the fear?"

With three dogs and an over grown baby,
I start to sooth them to sleep.
She fall asleep in my bed, and I try to escape, but I see I can't.

I think of sleep and look around,

I see the dog, hear the booms, and see the flashes.

Yet again I start to think, "Isn't I who should have the fear?"

Then I drift off to sleep thinking the same thing.

Life comes at you fast. It runs through your body and tries to escape and be expressed in any way possible. It's a lot like lightning." ~ Chris Colfer

Cold, black, utter darkness clouds my mind.

Nine years have lead to this day.

The night air breaths with every step that I take.

I hear the western winds howling
Sorrow into my ears.

A cold babe left alone in the street, crying for warmth.

The words that have once caressed me now deceive.

Your smile kills me, your laughter sears my life.

The memories of the past that I once loved are gone and have craved into hate.

Goodbye to you, for now, forever.

until we meet again,
I love you.

Ocean

- A The Ocean; what can I say?
B This is where I spend most my summer days.
A I would live here if I had my way.
B I think the ocean is beautiful, even in summer here.
C Many say the ocean is too cold.
D However, many things live in the icy water.
C And I manage to find a cozy warmth, no one's told D If you hate the cold, you could always sit on the beach.
E If you know the ocean, you know it's not so bad.
F Such as surfing or fishing or just lying on the sand.
E If you think of the ocean like I do, you know it's for F because even kings need a place to go have fun.
G While many view you as a heartless wastrel.
G I feel blessed to have felt your love firsthand.

The Day

You came into my life in the most unexpected way
On the bright sunny beach day

The day was new
The bright white sand and the deep ocean blue
But now I can say all I think about is you

You came so quick yet left so soon
Just like those sunny summer afternoons

Like summer you came and then left in a blink of an eye
I barely had time to spend with you
Or even say goodbye.
I miss u so much I could even cry

Every time I see your smiling face
I smile from ear to ear
I become so happy inside there isn't nothing I fear.

There is something about you I have never felt before
And I am hooked like a fish to lore

But summer is a season it will come again and as it has before it will bring me you

We will spend so much time together sitting on that white sand watching that beautiful deep ocean blue

And even though we are 500 miles apart
You will always have a special place right here in my heart.
